SENATE AND CONGRESSIONAL committee hearings continue to make news, with the Labor committees in both the House and Senate and the Senate Atomic Energy group headlining reports from Capitol Hill. J. S. Remine, Knoxville, Tenn., farmer, tells the solons how TVA Communists danced nude in the woods as he testifies at hearings on David E. Lilienthal's nomination to head the Atomic Energy commission. On the same side of Congress, Labor Senators hear Rev. Jerome L. Toner, professor of labor relations at St. Martin college, Lacey, Wash., defend the closed shop and propose that workers expelled from unions have their case tried before a public board. House Labor committee, chairman by Rep. Fred A. Hartley, Jr., (R) N. J., listens to AFL President William Green deny charges that labor is being "defeatist" and that it is the "duty" of unions to fight legislation that "is ill-considered."

March Begins With Snow Falling Over Central Ohio

March may not have come in like a lion but no lamb would claim the fleecy covering which was making Pickaway county highways slippery Saturday. More snow is predicted for the weekend with temperatures remaining below freezing Saturday night and Sunday. Circleville street maintenance crews, county and state highway workers were busy sanding streets and roads and the state highway department reported most Ohio roads were getting slippery. The thermometer registered 30 degrees above zero at 11 a. m. Saturday in Circleville in contrast with a balmy 62 above zero at the same time one year ago. March came into Ohio today as a snowman, with a combination sheepish and lionish expression on his frozen face. The snow was falling—and in quantities—from Cincinnati northward to Columbus and was to cover the state before nightfall. Weather bureau forecasters predicted a fall of from two to four inches in the southern half of Ohio and between one and two inches in the north. Intermittent snow was forecast through tomorrow. Low temperatures this morning ranged in the 20's as the moderately cold spell hung on. Forecasters said that it would even turn a shade colder by Sunday night. Failure of the weather to snap out of the cold doldrums was prolonging the gas shortage in many places, with some industries still cut off from supplies.

WEATHER

Circleville temperature was 28 degrees above zero at 8 a. m. Saturday and 30 degrees above zero at 11 a. m. Saturday. On the same date a year ago the low reading was 28 degrees above zero and the high was 62 above zero.

FIRE DESTROYS SHERMAN HURLEY FARM RESIDENCE

Farm home of the Sherman Hurley family in Jackson township, five miles west of Circleville, was destroyed by fire Friday afternoon. Amount of the loss was unestimated by Circleville firemen who were called to the scene at 3:25 p. m. Sparks reportedly ignited the shingled roof and firemen said the 2-story 6-room frame dwelling was a mass of flames when they arrived at the home, near the Darbyville pike. Aided by neighbors the firemen succeeded in saving about half of the house furnishings. The house burned to the ground. The loss was covered by insurance.

Chinese Premier Resigns Post

T. V. SOONG IS CRITICIZED BY CHINA LEADERS

Brother-in-Law Of Chiang Is Blamed For Country's Economic Troubles

NANKING, March 1—Premier T. V. Soong announced his immediate resignation today in the midst of a stormy session of the Chinese government's legislative yuan.

The Chinese premier's dramatic announcement came after several members of the yuan severely criticized him as being largely responsible for China's worsening economic crisis.

Soong, a brother of Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, disclosed that his resignation had already been accepted by Generalissimo Chiang.

Soong admitted that he had made "some mistakes" while guiding China's economic policies during the past two years. He added:

"But whatever I did was for the glory of the state."

He put much of the blame for disruption of the national economy squarely on the Communists.

Several members of the yuan shouted:

"You cannot blame everything on the Communists. Government leaders also are responsible."

Soong listened silently to heated criticisms and then cut his critics short by announcing:

"I have resigned. Please submit your honorable opinions to the new president."

(His positions as premier and president of the yuan are synonymous.)

Soong attempted twice previously to resign during the past two years, but both times Chiang refused to accept his resignation.

However, in this instance Chiang appeared to be forced to accept his resignation in the face of increasing public clamor for his removal and official insistence mainly by yuan members that he personally was responsible for China's economic chaos.

CLARK'S SPEECH SEEN AS OPENING TRUMAN DRIVE

MIAMI BEACH, FLA., March 1—Attorney General Tom Clark let it be known today that he favors the re-election of President Truman as insurance for the attainment of world peace.

Clark's speech was interpreted in political circles as an opening barrage in the Democratic campaign to re-elect President Truman in 1948.

Clark, speaking at a Democratic Jefferson jubilee dinner in Miami Beach last night, asserted that America's destiny rests on "which way the country goes on the issue of 'war-or-peace'."

He charged that the Republican party has no coordinated plan for peace.

School Aid Tax Opposed By Herbert

COLUMBUS, O., March 1—A suggestion that a tax increase be initiated to aid Ohio schools was frowned upon today by Gov. Herbert.

"I do not propose to increase the taxes of the state of Ohio at this time," Herbert told three representatives of the Marion county schools yesterday.

He made his flat declaration in answer to a question by County Superintendent D. T. Mills, who suggested the possibility of increasing the sales tax or opening up another source of revenue.

The delegation—third group of school men to wait upon the governor in as many days—received the same assurances as predecessors.

SOVIET ADMITS P. L. A. N. FAILURE

Russia Misses Production Goals Set For 1946 Under Five Year Plan

LONDON, March 1—The Soviet Union today admitted its failure to achieve production goals which had been set for 1946 under the five-year program.

The Moscow radio made public a lengthy list of various branches of industry and agriculture which did not succeed in fulfilling prescribed schedules.

Acknowledging that numerous difficulties had been encountered, the broadcast summation of what was achieved complained that the production of consumer goods was slower than conditions warranted.

The 1946 housing program also was not met and it was declared that this caused a check in labor productivity.

The situation brought a decree by the council of ministers outlining fundamental tasks of the state plan for restoration and development of the national economy in 1947.

Explaining that coal mining was among industries which fell behind, the decree demanded an all-around rise in production by the fuel industry.

The new production program calls for workers to overcome lags in agriculture and engineering which were held responsible for inadequate development of electrical engineering, mechanization and electrification processes.

The council asked for greater development of consumer goods industries, stating that the output should be increased at least 25 percent over the 1946 figure.

Final Budget Action May Await Foreign News

WASHINGTON, March 1—A Republican move may be made Monday to defer final budget action in the senate pending clarification of a possible momentous change in America's role abroad.

At least two leading Republican senators were understood to feel that because of its relation to the 33 billion dollar legislative budget "ceiling" more information should be given congress on these points:

1. Britain's request that the United States occupy Greece and furnish a loan to that country—a move which one government official described as the "first link" in a chain which might lead to U. S. assumption of British responsibilities in other areas.

2. Former President Herbert Hoover's recommendations for expanded relief to the starving millions of Germany and Austria.

Some senators, who preferred not to be quoted, expressed a belief that the new development on possible aid to Greece and elsewhere might knock present budget estimates into a cocked hat.

It was a surprise defeat by the Democrats which prompted senate GOP leaders to postpone until Monday final disposition of the 4-1/2 billion dollar cut in President Truman's 37-1/2 billion dollar budget.

YOUNG SLAYER AWAITS TRIP TO ELECTRIC CHAIR

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 1—Don Frohner, doomed 16-year-old Youngstown slayer, awaited removal today to Ohio penitentiary's "death row" for execution in the electric chair on June 10.

Frohner was sentenced to die yesterday by a three-judge panel for the robbery-killing of William C. Speith, 52-year-old Ashtabula salesman June 13.

His companion and accomplice, Ned Chapman, also 16, was sentenced to life imprisonment for his part in the slaying.

Chester Beard, defense counsel for Frohner, appeared stunned when the death verdict was read and had to be prompted by David C. Haynes, counsel for Chapman, when he asked the court for a new trial.

Frohner, dazed and limp, was led from the courtroom by two bailiffs. Chapman flashed a quick smile when he heard his verdict.

Mrs. T. G. Frohner, mother of the convicted youth, whispered quietly, "oh no, not my boy," and collapsed shortly after.

Frohner testified he committed the actual killing.

H.; Commander Jay Nimmon and other officers of Logan Commandery No. 78, Logan; and Sir Knight John S. Murray and other officers of Columbus Commandery No. 69, Columbus.

Officers of the Scioto Commandery No. 35, are: John Magill, commander; Vernon Blake, generalissimo; Herbert Snyder, Kingston, captain general; Orin Dresbach, prelate; Karl Hohenstein, senior warden; Jay Seaburn, Williamsport, junior warden; Adrian McVey, Kingston, sword bearer; Homer Reber, standard bearer; Ward Peck, warden; Harry Reese, sentinel; Harry Sark, recorder; and Charles Gusman, treasurer.

TEN BRITISH OFFICERS DIE IN JERUSALEM

JERUSALEM, March 1—Violence descended upon the Holy Land again today when a terrific explosion destroyed an exclusive club in the heart of Jerusalem, killing ten British officers and injuring 14 others.

The blast wrecked what was known as the "Goldschmidt Officers' Club," reserved for the use of high-ranking British army men and located only 30 yards from a structure housing the Jewish agency for Palestine.

Cause of the blast was not established immediately. It was assumed that extremists, who for many months have carried out violent attacks on the British, including murders and kidnappings, were responsible.

MARTINS FERRY, O., March 1—Members of the Eagles lodge at nearby Dillonvale today complained that their 40th annual celebration had been "ruined." Thieves took 18 cases of whisky, 60 cartons of cigarets and two radios.

TRUMAN TO GIVE STATEMENT ON WORLD POLICY

President Expected To Say U. S. Must Take Over Britain's Job

MORE AID TO EUROPE

Reports Indicate Americans Will Be Asked To Give Greece, Britain Help

WASHINGTON, March 1—Highest government authority revealed today that President Truman will disclose to the world in a speech at Waco, Tex., March 6, a momentous statement on future American policy toward Britain and Russia in Europe and the Middle East.

It was anticipated that the President will announce that the United States will have to take over temporarily from Great Britain the job of maintaining Anglo-American influence in Europe and the Middle East.

The British government brought the issue to a head by asking the United States to assume the British financial and military commitments in Greece and the Middle East. One top American authority declared the United States would never send its troops to replace British soldiers in key Mediterranean spots.

The British note was the result of London's embarrassing financial position. It was speeded by the steady movement of the Soviet Union to devour the Balkans, the Dardanelles, the Suez canal, the British Mediterranean lifeline, and the huge oil fields of the Middle East.

To Talk Thursday Leading up to the anticipated Truman statement in Texas, the White House announced last night the President would make "a major speech dealing with world affairs" at Baylor university next Thursday upon his return from a good-will flight to Mexico City.

Advance reports from well established sources indicated the President would ask for immediate action.

FIRST '47 STATE SCHOOL FUNDS RECEIVED HERE

Checks totaling $51,653.88 representing the first 1947 quarterly settlement of state funds for the 17 rural schools in Pickaway county were received Saturday at the office of George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools. The money came from the state school foundation and was distributed by State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson by authority of the state department of education.

Supt. McDowell said the checks would be mailed Saturday to the individual schools.

The amounts and the schools to which they were allotted are: Ashville, $3,444.80; Darby township, $4,448.89; Deercreek township, $3,776.38; Harrison township, $1,386.36; Monroe township, $3,852.22; Muhlenberg township, $650.94; New Holland, $3,636.06; Perry township, $2,702.81; Pickaway township, $4,359.82; Scioto township, $5,536.29; Turlington, $4,344.34; Walnut township, $5,732.36; Washington township, $4,019.18; and Wayne township, $1,592.42.

MARCH WHEAT IN DEMAND WITH PRICE AT NEW HIGH

CHICAGO, March 1—March wheat continued in broad demand today and opened 4c higher at $2.57, a new 27-year peak. Other grains were irregular in a big turnover. Heavy realizing, following yesterday's sharp bulge, was noted in many futures.

May wheat was unchanged to 1/4c lower following yesterday's 10-cent limit advance. July was 1/2 to 3c off and September 1 to 1-1/4c lower.

Corn was unchanged to 1/4c lower and oats 1/4c down to as much as a cent higher.

Greece, Britain Help

WASHINGTON, March 1—

Highest government authority revealed today that President Truman will disclose to the world in a speech at Waco, Tex., March 6, a momentous statement on future American policy toward Britain and Russia in Europe and the Middle East.

It was anticipated that the President will announce that the United States will have to take over temporarily from Great Britain the job of maintaining Anglo-American influence in Europe and the Middle East.

The British government brought the issue to a head by asking the United States to assume the British financial and military commitments in Greece and the Middle East. One top American authority declared the United States would never send its troops to replace British soldiers in key Mediterranean spots.

The British note was the result of London's embarrassing financial position. It was speeded by the steady movement of the Soviet Union to devour the Balkans, the Dardanelles, the Suez canal, the British Mediterranean lifeline, and the huge oil fields of the Middle East.

To Talk Thursday

Leading up to the anticipated Truman statement in Texas, the White House announced last night the President would make "a major speech dealing with world affairs" at Baylor university next Thursday upon his return from a good-will flight to Mexico City.

Advance reports from well established sources indicated the President would ask for immediate (Continued on Page Two)

FIRST '47 STATE SCHOOL FUNDS
RECEIVED HERE

Checks totaling $51,653.88 representing the first 1947 quarterly settlement of state funds for the 17 rural schools in Pickaway county were received Saturday at the office of George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools. The money came from the state school foundation and was distributed by State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson by authority of the state department of education.

Supt. McDowell said the checks would be mailed Saturday to the individual schools. The amounts and the schools to which they were allotted are: Ashville, $3,444.80; Darby township, $4,448.89; Deer Creek township, $3,774.38; Harrison township, $1,494.94; Jackson township, $2,680.79; Madison township, $1,386.36; Monroe township, $3,552.22; Muhlenberg township, $650.94; New Holland, $3,636.08; Perry township, $2,702.81; Pickaway township, $2,313.26; Salt Creek township, $4,359.82; Scioto township, $5,536.29; Tarlton, $46.34; Walnut township, $5,732.36; Washington township, $4,019.18; and Wayne township, $1,592.42.

TEN BRITISH OFFICERS DIE
IN JERUSALEM

JERUSALEM, March 1—Violence descended upon the Holy Land again today when a terrific explosion destroyed an exclusive club in the heart of Jerusalem, killing ten British officers and injuring 14 others.

The blast wrecked what was known as the "Goldschmidt Officers' Club," reserved for the use of high-ranking British army men and located only 30 yards from a structure housing the Jewish agency for Palestine.

Cause of the blast was not established immediately. It was assumed that extremists, who for many months have carried out violent attacks on the British, including murders and kidnappings, were responsible.

CELEBRATION SPOILED

MARTINS FERRY, O., March 1—Members of the Eagles lodge at nearby Dillonvale today complained that their 40th annual celebration had been "ruined."

Thieves took 18 cases of whisky, 60 cartons of cigars and two radios.

Pickaway Health Commissioner Says
Scarlet Fever Situation Is Improved

Citing that only 9 cases of scarlet fever have been reported in Pickaway county thus far in 1947, as compared with a total of 12 cases in the same period a year ago, Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, Saturday declared the situation at the present time is in no way alarming.

Dr. Roger E. Heering, director of the state department of health, announced at Columbus that according to the U. S. Public Health Service 15,039 cases of scarlet fever were reported throughout the nation for the first six weeks of 1947, as against a total of 17,479 during the first six weeks in 1946, and a five-year average incidence of 22,010 for the same period.

Dr. Heering said that 2,261 scarlet fever cases were reported in Ohio during the first six weeks of 1947 and that "this is not above the normal incidence of scarlet fever in Ohio for this season of the year and should cause no alarm."

Upon the appearance of scarlet fever in a community, Dr. Heering said, the public often clamors for the closing of the schools but that health authorities have agreed that such action does not contribute to the control of the disease.

"Children can better be observed by the health department," Dr. Blackburn asserted, "and also by the teaching staff if the schools remain open, and more prompt referral can be made by physicians upon the appearance of any symptom suggestive of scarlet fever.

"It should be remembered that scarlet fever is not a disease but a symptom-complex, caused by organisms belonging to the group of hemolytic streptococci. Infection may manifest itself as so-called scarlet fever, septic sore throat, and other diseases of the upper respiratory tract. The state department of health has recommended that boards of education, having the authority to close schools in emergencies, consult with health authorities before taking such steps. This has particular reference to the occurrence of communicable diseases."

FIRE DESTROYS
SHERMAN HURLEY
FARM RESIDENCE

Farm home of the Sherman Hurley family in Jackson township, five miles west of Circleville, was destroyed by fire Friday afternoon. Amount of the loss was unestimated by Circleville firemen who were called to the scene at 3:25 p. m.

Sparks reportedly ignited the shingled roof and firemen said the 2-story 6-room frame dwelling was a mass of flames when they arrived at the home, near the Darbyville pike. Aided by neighbors the firemen succeeded in saving about half of the house furnishings. The house burned to the ground. The loss was covered by insurance.

Leaders in Huddle

The Greek situation brought the world impasse to a startling head which had members of the executive and legislative groups, regardless of domestic politics, in a very serious huddle.

The state department cautiously let it be known that "a communication has been received on the subject of Greece" from London, which "the department is not prepared to discuss at this time."

High government officials said the note dealt only with the problem of maintaining a friendly government in Greece.

Face Big Decision

But, American statesmen were fully aware that if the United States committed itself to maintaining Anglo-Saxon influence in Greece, it also would be committed to maintaining Anglo-Saxon influence throughout the Middle East and to restoring it in the Balkans.

As one of the highest American officials said, the United States and the American people face "the most momentous decision since the end of World War II."

ASHVILLE

Miss Virginia Baum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Baum, received her cap in an impressive ceremony held in the White Cross Hospital Chapel Monday evening. Miss Baum, a student nurse at White Cross, was one of 36 who were advanced Monday.

Robert Miles, who suffered severe burns on his right hand while fighting a fire at his home last week, is much improved and is back at work.

Miss Mary Helen Dennis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Dennis, and William Miller were married Tuesday evening at 8:00 by the Rev. H. O. Harbaugh at his home. The newly married couple will make their home in the former Gloyd dwelling on Powell Street.

Pickaway County Aberdeen Angus Association will meet at Betz Restaurant, Circleville, Monday at 6:30 p. m. for a supper and business meeting. Tom Harmon, Pickaway County fair manager, will be the guest speaker, according to President Hewitt Cromley of Ashville.

About 50 members and guests attended a meeting of Palmetto Lodge No. 513, Knights of Pythias Wednesday evening. Dale Schiff, Jerry Trego, and Romaine Wilson received the Knight Rank. Visitors from Circleville, Columbus, and Canal Winchester were present. Lunch was served by the committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Morrison returned home Tuesday after a vacation trip in Florida.

ATA PROPOSES AERIAL HIGHWAY NETWORK IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, March 1—The Air Transport Association, representing the nation's scheduled airlines, today proposed creation in the future of "an aerial highway network" to handle increased air traffic.

Specifically, the ATA plan calls for:

1. Fully automatic traffic control from the ground of planes flown manually or by automatic devices.
2. Creation of air lanes "so greatly multiplied, side by side and vertically, along trunk routes, as to be capable of handling safely and expeditiously the great volumes of traffic anticipated in coming years."
3. All-weather flying "with greater safety than ever before" through a system of "block signals in conjunction with spare lanes, holding spots, and speed control areas so spaced... as to eliminate the present 'stacks'."

TEACHERS TURN DOWN PLEA TO RESUME POSTS

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 1—A polite but noncommittal answer was the reply today of Buffalo's striking school teachers to the appeal of Dr. Francis T. Spaulding, state commissioner of education, that they return to their classrooms Monday morning.

Dr. Spaulding, in issuing his request in Albany, asserted it was the "paramount and unconditional obligation" of every teacher to assure uninterrupted educational services.

Raymond J. Ast, president of the Buffalo teachers federation held a two-hour meeting with his advisers last night and then issued this statement:

"The Buffalo teachers federation has received no official comment from the commissioner of education. However, on the basis of newspaper reports Mr. Ast stated that the teachers appreciate Dr. Spaulding's position in this matter and that they are prepared to fulfill their obligations to the children when the local officials fulfill their obligations to the children and to the teachers of Buffalo."

TWO WIVES ASK DIVORCES IN PETITIONS FILED HERE

Mrs. Mollie Harshaw, married for 44 years and the mother of two adult children, filed suit for divorce in Pickaway county common pleas court, Friday, accusing Joseph Harshaw, Route 2, Shoals, Ind., of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty. She also asks for alimony and determination of the respective property rights. Her petition says they jointly own a 110-acre farm in Martin county, Ind.

Reciting that they were married Aug. 31, 1902 at Lagoda, Ind., Mrs. Harshaw alleges her husband failed to provide her with the necessities of life and that since December, 1942 she has been employed in Pickaway county and has supported herself.

In another divorce suit, filed Friday, Mrs. Ollie Bates charges Clyde Bates, Weldon avenue, with extreme cruelty. She says they were married Aug. 14, 1937 in Circleville and that they are childless. On several occasions, Mrs. Bates alleges, her husband struck her and on one of those occasions three of her ribs were broken. She says they separated after he struck her on Christmas, 1946 and that while they have occupied the same premises since then they have not lived as man and wife. Judge William D. Radcliff granted a temporary injunction restraining Bates from molesting her during the pendency of the suit.

SWIFT ACTION BY SENATE ON PORTAL PAY SEEN

WASHINGTON, March 1—Legislation banning portal-to-portal pay suits appeared headed today for swift action in the senate in the wake of its overwhelming approval by the house.

The senate leadership put a similar measure, sponsored by Sen. Wiley (R) Wis., near the top of the legislative agenda and it was expected to be called up for consideration next week.

Gop leaders predicted that a substantial number of senate Democrats will join with their Republican colleagues to assure passage. The Wiley bill, which has already been approved by the senate judiciary committee, carries out in different language the basic purposes of the house bill.

The house measure, sponsored by Rep. Gwynne (R) Iowa contains a one-year limitation. At present, there is no federal statute covering this, the time being left to state laws, which vary as high as six years.

The house bill received an overwhelming 345 to 56 vote of approval, after the top-heavy Republican majority beat down all amendments.

The Gwynne bill was the first labor measure to be passed by either house since the Republicans assumed control of the 80th congress. A few Democrats charged that the bill was "anti-labor," an accusation which Republican leaders heatedly denied.

SICILY VILLAGE IN PATH OF NEW FLOW OF LAVA

PASSO PISCIAIO, ON THE SLOPES OF ERUPTING MT. ETNA, March 1—The Sicilian village of Passo Pisciaio appears doomed today by a resurgence of molten lava from the Mt. Etna volcano.

Four small farmhouses only 100 yards north of the hamlet already have been overrun by the lava streaking down from three additional craters which opened up yesterday half way from the summit of the volcanic peak.

The three newly-activated craters, some 48 hundred feet above sea level belched fountain-like, flaming lava columns 400 to 500 feet into the air.

The new eruptions occurred during a heavy hail storm which lashed the region for an hour and then was followed by incessant rainfall.

The lava flow from the smaller craters took the same course as that from the main crater at 9,000 feet.

The senate leadership put a similar measure, sponsored by Sen. Wiley (R) Wis., near the top of the legislative agenda and it was expected to be called up for consideration next week.

Gop leaders predicted that a substantial number of senate Democrats will join with their Republican colleagues to assure passage. The Wiley bill, which has already been approved by the senate judiciary committee, carries out in different language the basic purposes of the house bill.

The house measure, sponsored by Rep. Gwynne (R) Iowa contains a one-year limitation. At present, there is no federal statute covering this, the time being left to state laws, which vary to as high as six years.

The house bill received an overwhelming 345 to 55 vote of approval, after the top-heavy Republican majority beat down all amendments.

The Gwynne bill was the first labor measure to be passed by either house since the Republicans assumed control of the 80th congress. A few Democrats charged that the bill was "anti-labor," an accusation which Republican leaders heatedly denied.

SICILY VILLAGE IN PATH OF NEW FLOW OF LAVA

PASSO PISCIAIO, ON THE SLOPES OF ERUPTING MT. ETNA, March 1—The Sicilian village of Passo Pisciaro appeared doomed today by a resurgence of molten lava from the Mt. Etna volcano.

Four small farmhouses only 100 yards north of the hamlet already have been overrun by the lava streaking down from three additional craters which opened up yesterday half way from the summit of the volcanic peak.

The three newly-activated craters, some 48 hundred feet above sea level belched fountain-like, flaming lava columns 400 to 500 feet into the air.

The new eruptions occurred during a heavy hail storm which lashed the region for an hour and then was followed by incessant rainfall.

The lava flow from the smaller craters took the same course as that from the main crater at 9,000 feet.

LIQUOR RATION SAME

COLUMBUS, O., March 1—The next liquor ration period, beginning Monday, will remain unchanged at three weeks.

supported this but challenged a follow-up amendment by Sen. Wheeler (R) Neb., requiring that revenue from surplus property sales be applied on the debt.

Taft contended that without clarification, which he proposed in an amendment, the Wheeler plan might jeopardize the GOP tax reduction program.

He was defeated, in the first Democratic victory of the 80th congress, when he tried to stipulate that the surplus property revenues would be part of, rather than in addition to, the two billion six hundred million debt payment.

Taft said another modification of the Wheeler amendment would probably be drafted over the weekend. He indicated he would prefer to see this course followed rather than to urge Republicans to vote down the proposal of their party whip.

ANGLO-FRENCH TREATY FOLLOWS BYRNES PLANS

LONDON, March 1—Official sources revealed today that some aspects of the 50-year Anglo-French treaty were carefully drafted with a view to possible conclusion of a four-power pact along the lines proposed by James F. Byrnes.

Britain already has endorsed in principle the plan laid down by the former U. S. secretary of state and has indicated a desire to join in preventing any future resurgence of an aggressive Germany.

The Anglo-French treaty, which will be signed at Dunkirk Tuesday, provides that France or Britain should come to the assistance of the other in the event of an armed attack by Germany, or in event of a threat to either by adoption of an aggressive policy by Germany.

In the event of a threat to the security of France or Britain, mutual aid is called for on the military, economic and political plane.

The treaty was framed carefully to comply with the provisions of the United Nations charter.

MOVIE FANS MARCH OUT AS THEATER IS BURNED

UHRICHVILLE, O., March 1—Several hundred movie fans calmly walked out of the State theater in Uhrichsville when fire broke out on the stage last night. No one was injured.

The blaze, which apparently started in an air conditioning shaft, destroyed the structure at a loss estimated today at $100,000. The theater was located in the downtown section of Uhrichsville and for a time threatened other buildings in the densely built-up section.

Fishers Of Men

Jesus Sums Up His Claims

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 2 is John 12:12-50; Mark 11:1-10, the Memory Verse being Mark 11:9, "Hosanna; Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord.")

THE EVENTS in the first part of today's lesson occurred on Sunday, April 2, A. D. 30, and those recorded in the rest of the chapter on Tuesday of Holy Week.

Mark tells us that when Jesus and His companions were on their way to Jerusalem for the feast of the Tabernacles, and had come to Bethany, and had come to the mount of Olives. He sent two of his disciples into the village, telling them they would find a young colt which had never been ridden. He would be tied, and they were to untie him and bring him to Jesus. If anyone questioned them they were to say, "The Lord had need of him."

This the men did and they were allowed to take the colt to Jesus, and then they put their garments on him and Jesus rode upon him. Many people, knowing that Jesus was going to Jerusalem, gathered to see Him, and when they went to meet Him some spread their garments before Him, and others cut down palm branches and strewed them in the way, crying, "Hosanna, Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord!"

This was Jesus' moment of triumph on earth. The people were recognizing Christ as the Savior, as it is written in Zechariah 9:9, "Fear not, daughter of Zion: behold, thy King cometh, sitting on an ass's colt."

The disciples did not understand this at first, "but when Jesus was glorified, then remembered they that these things were written of Him, and that they had done these things unto Him."

Pharisees Angered
The Pharisees, however, said among themselves: "Perceive ye how ye prevail nothing? Behold, the world is gone after Him." They were jealous and afraid of this Man and His influence with the people.

On Tuesday "certain Greeks" who had come to worship at the feast, came to Philip and said to him, "Sir, we would see Jesus." Philip told Andrew, and the two told Jesus. Jesus answered them, "The hour is come, that the Son of man should be glorified. Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit."

from this hour; but for this cause came I unto this hour. Father, glorify Thy name."

"Then came there a voice from heaven, saying, I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again." The people who stood by heard the voice, and some thought it thundered, but some said, "An angel spake to Him." Jesus said, "This voice came not because of Me, but for your sakes."

"Now is the judgment of this world; now shall the prince of this world be cast out."

"And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto Me. This He said, signifying what death He should die."

The people answered Him, "We have heard out of the law that Christ abideth for ever and how sayest Thou, The Son of man must be lifted up? Who is this Son of man?"

Then Jesus said, "Yet a little while is the light with you. Walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you; for he that walketh in darkness knoweth not whither he goeth."

Many Believed Not
To us it seems that if only we could have had the privilege of being with Jesus, we would have understood His words, but the people that went in droves to see this Man who wrought miracles, did good deeds and said beautiful things were not understanding or believing. John says, "But though He had done so many miracles before them, yet they believed not on Him."

"That the saying of Esaias the prophet might be fulfilled, which he spake, Lord, who hath believed our report? and to whom hath the arm of the Lord been revealed?"

"He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart; that they should not see with their eyes, nor understand with their heart, and be converted, and I should heal them."

How true were Jesus' words about the seed of the wheat. Except it was buried in the ground and changed its form—died—wheat would not grow from it. If Jesus had not suffered on the cross, made the supreme sacrifice, the millions who now believe on Him would not believe.

"And Jesus walking by the sea of Galilee, saw two brethren, Simon called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea; for they were fishers. And He saith unto them, Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men."

And they straightway left their nets and followed Him." This picture of fishing boats in the harbor is one most persons would regard as distinctly commonplace and without sentiment. It was often in the humblest circumstances that Jesus found illustrative material which offered a background for His parables. Ships and fishermen were important in the life of Jesus. In the Book of Luke, people pressed upon Him to hear the word of God as he stood by the lake of Gennesaret. He entered into one of the ships and taught the people from there. His promise to make Simon and Andrew "fishers of men" recalls another promise, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." In the churches and Sunday Schools we and our children are taught the way to become "fishers of men." In God's house we learn that faith in Him will make all things possible, remove mountains.

Regular attendance in our houses of worship is duty that none can regard lightly. It is one step in the direction of right living. Our ministers can teach us all of the ways by which we may do our part in the building of the kingdom.

Mark tells us that when Jesus and His companions were on their way to Jerusalem for the feast of the Tabernacles, and had come to Bethany, and had come to the mount of Olives. He sent two of his disciples into the village, telling them they would find a young colt which had never been ridden. He would be tied, and they were to untie him and bring him to Jesus. If anyone questioned them they were to say, "The Lord had need of him."

This the men did and they were allowed to take the colt to Jesus, and then they put their garments on him and Jesus rode upon him. Many people, knowing that Jesus was going to Jerusalem, gathered to see Him, and when they went to meet Him some spread their garments before Him, and others cut down palm branches and strewed them in the way, crying, "Hosanna, Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord!"

This was Jesus' moment of triumph on earth. The people were recognizing Christ as the Savior, as it is written in Zechariah 9:9, "Fear not, daughter of Zion: behold, thy King cometh, sitting on an ass's colt."

The disciples did not understand this at first, "but when Jesus was glorified, then remembered they that these things were written of Him, and that they had done these things unto Him."

Pharisees Angered
The Pharisees, however, said among themselves: "Perceive ye how ye prevail nothing? Behold, the world is gone after Him." They were jealous and afraid of this Man and His influence with the people.

On Tuesday "certain Greeks" who had come to worship at the feast, came to Philip and said to him, "Sir, we would see Jesus." Philip told Andrew, and the two told Jesus. Jesus answered them, "The hour is come, that the Son of man should be glorified. Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit."

And later, knowing what was ahead of Him, Jesus said, "Now is My soul troubled; and how shall I say? Father, save Me from this hour; but for this cause came I unto this hour. Father, glorify Thy name."

"Then came there a voice from heaven, saying, I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again." The people who stood by heard the voice, and some thought it thundered, but some said, "An angel spake to Him." Jesus said, "This voice came not because of Me, but for your sakes."

"Now is the judgment of this world; now shall the prince of this world be cast out."

"And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto Me. This He said, signifying what death He should die."

The people answered Him, "We have heard out of the law that Christ abideth for ever and how sayest Thou, The Son of man must be lifted up? Who is this Son of man?"

Then Jesus said, "Yet a little while is the light with you. Walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you; for he that walketh in darkness knoweth not whither he goeth."

Many Believed Not
To us it seems that if only we could have had the privilege of being with Jesus, we would have understood His words, but the people that went in droves to see this Man who wrought miracles, did good deeds and said beautiful things were not understanding or believing. John says, "But though He had done so many miracles before them, yet they believed not on Him."

"That the saying of Esaias the prophet might be fulfilled, which he spake, Lord, who hath believed our report? and to whom hath the arm of the Lord been revealed?"

"He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart; that they should not see with their eyes, nor understand with their heart, and be converted, and I should heal them."

How true were Jesus' words about the seed of the wheat. Except it was buried in the ground and changed its form—died—wheat would not grow from it. If Jesus had not suffered on the cross, made the supreme sacrifice, the millions who now believe on Him would not believe.

As it was, even though His enemies sought His death and many who heard Him and saw Him work refused to accept Him, many did believe, even many in high places. John tells us, "Nevertheless among the chief rulers also many believed on Him; but because of the Pharisees they did not confess Him, lest they should be put out of the synagogue."

"For they liked the praise of men more than the praise of God."

"And Jesus walking by the sea of Galilee, saw two brethren, Simon called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea; for they were fishers. And He saith unto them, Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men."

And they straightway left their nets and followed Him.
This picture of fishing boats in the harbor is one most persons would regard as distinctly commonplace and without sentiment. It was often in the humblest circumstances that Jesus found illustrative material which offered a background for His parables. Ships and fishermen were important in the life of Jesus. In the Book of Luke, people pressed upon Him to hear the word of God as he stood by the lake of Gennesaret. He entered into one of the ships and taught the people from there. His promise to make Simon and Andrew "fishers of men"

recalls another promise, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." In the churches and Sunday Schools we and our children are taught the way to become "fishers of men." In God's house we learn that faith in Him will make all things possible, remove mountains,

Regular attendance in our houses of worship is duty that none can regard lightly. It is one step in the direction of right living. Our ministers can teach us all of the ways by which we may do our part in the building of the kingdom.

USING EX-PRESIDENTS
WHAT TO DO with ex-presidents is a question which has been plaguing Washington for decades. President Truman has made use of Herbert Hoover, giving him a kind of ambassador-at-large rank. But there's nothing official about it. Now Representative Gordon Canfield of New Jersey places a bill before Congress to make all former Presidents senators at large. They would be able to speak from the floor and have all the rights and privileges of the Senate, including salary, clerical help and the like. But they would not vote, since if they did they would upset the balance of the vote of state they happened to represent. The nation thus would have the benefit automatically of the experience of such men, rather than have their services depend on a chance appointment.

A further step along this same line would be to insure that the defeated presidential candidates also be used in some way. The need for this was apparent in the case of Wendell Willkie who had polled a large popular vote, and thus was a suitable channel for the "loyal opposition". He would have had much to offer, and at the crucial war period could have helped to unite the country. This latter idea, however, presumes popularity with the public which, after all, turned him down in favor of the man they elected, and it also presumes a certain strength of character and generosity of spirit not, unfortunately, possessed by every defeated candidate.

CARE OF THE HEART
THREE TIMES as many deaths as cancer, six times as many as accidents, seven times as many as pneumonia and ten times as many as tuberculosis are ascribed vaguely to heart disease. Many of these are due primarily to other causes which in time affect the heart. It is apparently true, however, that the tensions and drive in modern living are more than nature intended the human heart to withstand and there are too many cases of real heart illness besides the failures due to other diseases.

A satisfactory life and one full of service can be worked out for those afflicted with heart impairments. But the heart irregularities must be detected early, and for this there is need of far wider facilities than now available. Here is a line along which national medical attention is trying to proceed, usually without sufficient funds either for preventive research or for hospital care.

By the way, isn't this nation going a little strong on "Beauty Queens"? And getting a little mixed up on them? There were forty fire queens at the recent Twin Cities ice festival.

'ROUND CINCINNATI.... Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:
Up to a nippy morning, but one of sunshine and much promise. None of the feel, but some of the appearance of Spring. Very pleasant. Took a turn around the place and then inside for coffee before the start downtown.

At the post a letter from Ed Sensenbrenner and a card from Harley Colwell, both in Florida. Also another Sunday Miami paper from Dave Dunlap, who has put on 15 pounds during his Southern sojourn. A laugh in Ed Sensenbrenner's letter. Said that fishermen have thrown away their rods and reels in Florida for the fish are coming right out on the shore, giving up because of a preference for frying over freezing. Also said that all the natives say the cold spell is very unusual. Copying a favorite California expression, Ed thinks. Al Cook down there freezing with Ed. And Ed was such an optimist that he left behind his ear-flap cap and took along one of the Summer variety.

Chatted with Guy Culp and learned about roads up Lima way and to the north made extremely difficult by ice and snow. Saw Bish Given and Budd Hardin in serious talk and knew that the discussion must be about Spring fishing and when it will get under way. That was it.

Exchanged unpleasanties with George Fitzpatrick. Told me that he was made well by visions of me as one of his palbearers, and that if I really had been that he would have risen up in the casket to break my arm. Yes, he's practically well.

There goes Frank Wantz soliciting for the Boy Scouts and here comes Ralph May collecting for the Red Cross. Checks to both as they are representatives of worthy causes. Then read of Herbert Hoover's recommendation that we spend a half billion feeding the Germans. Don't know just how much that will cost me, but it will be plenty no doubt. Has to be done, I suppose.

Home in the late afternoon and then away to the grocery store, a trip from which I returned as broke as from a fishing trip into Canada.

Anger stirred by a letter from the manufacturer of a piece of machine badly needed in the plant. Asked a $300 deposit with the return of a contract and passed on information that delivery could not be made inside 15 months. So, I wrote back and said xxxxxxxx among other things. This deposit with order coupled with far distant and uncertain delivery has developed into quite a racket. And one for which I do not fall. Something like the 97 cent ham that does not accompany my eggs.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS
By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 1—Five or more new sagebrush senators (Republicans) from the Far West have been working together quietly on the highly pressured labor legislation. Their sparsely reported actions suggest they may be leading up to the first formidable intra-party rebellion on the closed shop issue. One of their number, Nevada's George Malone, made a speech out West recently saying he would not vote to outlaw the closed shop. Instead he proposed abolition of the check-off system, whereby the company pays the unions dues and deducts the amount from individual paychecks.

These sagebrushers refer to eastern Republicans as "dudes". They meet in private and are supposed to have sponsored a movement to get their local state unions together on an agreement for labor reform legislation. State locals around the Pacific coast area have shown some inclination to rebel against what they call the New York national leadership of their unions.

particularly the Communist influenced directors. The senators and their local leaders may think they have some unofficial understanding, if not a direct agreement.

The closed shop issue is, therefore, heading up into difficulties.

Basically the closed shop is a monopoly of employment. The unions can see plainly that business monopoly is repugnant to the interests of the public and to the democratic capitalistic system itself. Industrial monopoly has been overwhelmingly opposed for many years because it can charge its own price for its products without fear of competition, but it is uneconomic for many other reasons. It can control production and public supply. It can withhold its products or release them. It can control the raw materials sources of its own supplies, being in varying degrees a large or largest user. It can even control the quality of product, because you are restricted in buying whatever it produces. You cannot walk across the street and buy it competitively. But it is a permanent roadblock to free capitalism because it can prevent a competitor from ever getting started.

The unions cannot see that the same objections hold true concerning a closed shop monopoly of employment. This is not just a question of a man's right to work, although that right should be established. Economically a closed shop can upset a national economy. Without fear of competition, it can fix prices by its wage, hours and other demands increasing the cost of production; indeed forcing them ever upward from year to year in an inflationary spiral. Similarly it can allow the quality of product to deteriorate by its workmanship without fear of interference. It can keep competitive workers from getting jobs and thus restrain trade. From the standpoint of public good, a monopoly of the jobs is as wrong economically as a monopoly of a business.

Now some union authorities tell me the unions could bargain collectively without danger to their rights under a law outlawing the closed shop. Indeed several states started referendum machinery to ban the union monopoly at the last election. The unions generally are well financed and able to care for themselves in equal dealing with management. But the pressures of their leaders has been built up so strong here in congress that certain experienced Republican leaders think they might endanger the coming re-

DIET AND HEALTH
Treatment of Allergy Aided By Discovery of New Drugs

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
THE combating of allergies is one of the major problems of modern medicine. The more we study the puzzling fact that substances which are harmless to the vast majority may bring about diseased conditions in the few, the more certain we become that this peculiar, individual over-sensitivity is at the bottom of far more disorders than hay fever, hives and asthma.

Recent investigation of the whole subject has given us at least a clue as to how allergy does its harmful work. There is a chemical in the body which is called histamine and it is thought that the substance to which the allergic patient is sensitive causes excessive amounts of this chemical to be formed and released into the body tissues.

New Drugs
Recently, a number of new drugs which seem to counteract or prevent the action of histamine have been discovered. One of these is called pyribenzamine. A study of its effects on 277 patients reveals that relief of symptoms occurred within 15 to 20 minutes after the drug was taken and that this relief lasted from four to six hours.

Of 140 patients who had hay fever, 85 per cent obtained relief from their symptoms. Of 15 patients with acute hives, all but one were notably relieved. Of 44 with chronic hives, two out of three were greatly improved.

Treatment of Asthma
The results of treatment of asthma were not as satisfactory

as those for hay fever but about half of the patients noted definite relief from their symptoms. When the pyribenzamine was given with another preparation known as ephedrine sulfate more notable improvement in the treatment of asthma was obtained.

Pyribenzamine has also been tried in the treatment of poison ivy and it seems that it is helpful in relieving the itching.

Given by Mouth
Pyribenzamine is given by mouth four times a day, preferably after meals. It is not recommended that the drug be given by injection under the skin or into a muscle nor should it be used by injection into a vein since it seems to cause some lowering of the blood pressure.

Reactions to this preparation are rarely severe. The larger the dose employed the more frequently these reactions occur. They may consist of such things as drowsiness, dizziness, faintness, sickness to the stomach and vomiting. Nevertheless, the preparation can apparently be used over long periods of time without any lasting ill effects. Further studies on this preparation are needed, however, before we can determine just how helpful it will be to the many different types of allergic sufferers.

The drug also gives only temporary relief and does not cure the hypersensitivity. Therefore, it is important to continue searching for the cause, under a doctor's supervision, and eliminate it if possible, or build up a resistance to it.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN
BLACK GOING. For the first mile he expected at any moment to hear sounds of pursuit, but they reached the base of the foothills with no sign of the soldiers, and there Cliff gave the trail-wise horses their heads, urging them to a fast trot over the level stretches, stopping only to turn on the flashlight when the animals' hesitation told of a fork in the trail.

"Where are you taking me?" Janet asked him once, as they halted to let the horses rest, "Big Swamp."

He had been dreading that question, and he knew his answer was evasive, but there wasn't time to talk. Even beyond the need for haste, there was nothing to gain by telling her now. She would know soon enough. And the grim thought came to him that if the soldiers overtook them, there would be no need to tell her at all.

On through the moonless night he forced their flapping horses, while the furtive eyes of jungle creatures watched from beyond the path, and night birds cried in shrill protest at their passing.

Faint dawn was just touching the waters of Big Swamp when Cliff led Janet down the bank and out along the line of stunted mangroves toward the mud-silted island that for a time east might have to be her home. And as he rode, it seemed incredibly strange to think of her as a fugitive, seeking a precarious refuge where her father had sought it two years before.

As they came nearer, Cliff's eyes searched each foot of the island, but there was neither sound nor motion, and soon they were climbing up from the swamp and over the flinty trail into the clearing. It lay quiet and empty. Too quiet. For a moment he wondered if the vaqueros or federalists had already found the place and were waiting for him to walk into their trap. In either case there was not time to go back now, and with no attempt at concealment he rode across the clearing, then stopped in front of the low, thatched dwelling where he had first met Dr. Norman.

Janet's eyes moved curiously about her, then rose to Cliff, and in them he read the inevitable question.

But still he did not speak. He knew he could no longer put off telling her the story of her father's identity, yet he felt a vast unwillingness to begin—so much of that story he himself did not understand. "Janet,"—he drew a long breath—"I brought you here because—"

She was not listening. Her whole body had stiffened, her eyes, wide with disbelief, were looking beyond him, and turning, Cliff saw Norman in the doorway. Still as a statue Janet sat her horse, while drop by drop the blood drained from her cheeks; her hands tried to rise, then dropped in weakness at her side.

"Father!" Like a cry of anguish the one word broke the silence, and now her head sank forward, she swayed, and would have fallen from the saddle, but Norman caught the limp form in his arms.

Jumping from his horse, Cliff took a step after them, then stopped. Better to leave them together—there was so much for them to say to one another, so much in which he had no place. He watched Norman carry Janet inside the shack, then walked to the edge of the clearing and for a time stood looking out across the waters of Big Swamp, shimmering in the sun. Behind him he heard the low whinny of his horse, and realizing that the two animals were wet and weary after their long climb, led them around to the back of the dwelling, and taking off their saddles, turned them loose to graze on the sparse grass of the clearing. Lighting a cigarette, he sat down in the shade of a palm.

The immediate danger of pursuit was behind him, but he knew that the real peril was still to be met—ahead of him lay the menace of Madison's jealousy, and that could not be avoided for long. The very pattern of Madison's vindictive nature would drive him to some swift act of vengeance, no matter how desperate, no matter, as Janet had said, if he wrecked himself.

What form that vengeance might take, Cliff did not even try to guess, but he could not ignore the fact that any further delay in his work meant only one thing—he would be done. Even now Casey must be wondering about his absence—the men would lose precious time searching for him, and time was the one thing they couldn't afford to lose. A week, a few days even, meant the difference between success and failure.

He was so deeply sunk in his thoughts that he did not hear Janet until she stood by his side.

"You ran away from me," she said.

"You didn't really need me," He saw that her cheeks were wet, but her eyes were shining, and for the first time that day he smiled.

"You're happy now, aren't you?" "I think I'm too afraid to be happy. I keep telling myself that all this really happened—that he's alive and I'm here. But it's too—"

She stopped, and he gently said, "It's all really happened, Janet. Your father's alive."

"But what's ahead for him, Cliff? Will he always have to hide away like a hunted animal?"

"I don't know any more than you, darling. Hasn't he told you why he came here in the first place?"

"We hardly talked at all. I just held him and cried. I know what they mean now when they talk of crying from happiness."

A footstep sounded on the path, and Norman came toward them. He was as visibly moved as Janet when he shook Cliff's hand.

"I told you once that Janet was not to know about me," he said, "but I was wrong. You were right to bring her here."

"I had to bring her," Cliff answered. "The soldiers—"

"Yes, I know about them. I have sent a man back to warn us if they find your trail. There is little chance of that, but a messenger is leaving to tell Vicente to gather our riders. In the meanwhile, there's something you both must know, and perhaps not much time to tell it in."

Seating himself between them, Norman studied Cliff's face, and his gray eyes were smiling.

"One of the things I liked about you the first day we met was your bluntness," he began. "You told me I was a cold-blooded father to let Janet go on believing me dead. I want to tell you why I had no choice—I had to do it."

He laid his hand on Janet's and went on. "I suppose everyone thinks his own life work is the most important thing in the world. I know I did. I came here over twenty years ago at Claribel's invitation to stamp out malaria among the river people. There was scarcely a healthy man or woman in all the lower country those days, and at first it wasn't easy to help them. They were suspicious and unfriendly—they wanted to be left alone. It took years to get their confidence, but when I did, when they finally learned that my only purpose here was to help them, I found them the kindest people in the world. They brought me their problems, they came to me for help in sorrow, until I was more a priest to them than a doctor.

"My main obstacle was Madison. He disliked me from the start; he resented Claribel's trust in me, and years later he began his bullying tactics against the very people I was trying to bring health to, so it was inevitable that he and I should quarrel.

"Two years ago, while Janet was in the States, I was treating a banana planter's family for dengue fever, and on one of my visits I found three of Madison's vaqueros trying to force the family out of their home. They had already taken the father from his sick-bed when I came in. We had hot words, and one of the vaqueros struck me.

Norman's eyes glowed. "I am quick-tempered, and my hands and arms are very strong. When they pulled me from the man he was unconscious—later he died. It was the first time anyone had dared oppose the vaqueros, and Madison was mad with rage. He demanded that Claribel send me out of the colony, but when I told her my story, she refused. She tried to bring about a reconciliation, but nothing could have been more hopeless. I think it was then Madison realized that I could be a real danger to him, and two days later Vicente learned that the vaqueros intended to kill me on my next trip to the jungle, and make it appear an act of the Blacklanders.

"Whether Madison planned this, I don't know, but my death would have served him in two ways—he would be rid of me once and for all, and the Blacklanders themselves would have to bear the blame."

Norman rose. "You make decisions quickly at times like that. There was no longer any safety for me here. My usefulness as Dr. Norman was over, and yet I knew that if I went away I was abandoning twenty years of heartbreaking work—practically the labor of a lifetime—just as it reached the very threshold of success. What use was it to stamp out fever, or teach these people about nutrition and better living, only to leave them in slavery under Madison's cattleman? I resolved then and there to show the Blacklanders how to defend themselves, if it took the rest of my life. Their one hope lay in organizing. They needed a leader, and I determined to be that leader. I called in Vicente and three other men I could trust, and we held a council of war. It was the start of the rainy season, and we decided I would be drowned."

For the first time Janet spoke. "And you let me go on believing that?"

Norman's eyes softened. "Darling, don't you see I had to? Nothing on earth would have kept you from coming to me. You would have lived to live the life of an outlaw, for that is what I became once they put a price on my head. I love you more than anyone in the world; I couldn't face subjecting you to the life of a hunted animal."

For Saturday, March 1
PROJECTS and plans of utmost significance, already established on a progressive and promising basis, may be brought to amazing crises by a sudden precipitation of circumstance and factors seemingly arising "from the blue." While there is prospect of such being swerved in the direction of desired channels, yet a tendency to plunge into extravagance, waste and unreasonable situations would spell disaster. Judgment and values are faulty, while the unusual aspects of curious events or proposals demand acumen.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves engulfed in a year of sudden and strange events and visitations, which might be swerved to either side of the ledger according to the sagacity, wisdom and sound sense brought to bear upon critical situations. Unfortunately the mentality is not reliable, apt to jump at wrong conclusions, and an impulse to excess, extravagance and prodigality may heighten the hazard. Be wise with queer persons, propositions and emotional commitments.

A child born on this day has fine executive and practical ability, despite a mind easily distorted and a predisposition toward prodigality, extravagance and waste of energies and assets.

THE WORST YOU CAN DO
THERE is nothing worse you can do in bridge than take some action which at once shifts your own side from a position of certainty to get a good score to certainty of having a good score made against you. Among acts which can have that result are business doubles of adverse contracts which inform the declarer how he should play the hand. Talk about bad and inconsistent bidding by Mr. North. His opening 3-Clubs call was atrocious enough, when his hand was so useful if his partner ultimately wanted a contract of 3-No Trumps. Then, after South had doubled the 3-Hearts, North became panicky and decided he couldn't deliver any share of the defensive strength. So he fled into the 4-Clubs. A moment's thought would have told him South did not expect him to help.

South got into the class of bad bidders when, after North's 4-Clubs takeout, he tried the 4-No Trumps. He should have considered North's second bid as indicating his hand was utterly worthless and void of any high stuff, which is what such bidding would mean if a fine player did it.

But the worst action by anybody was the business double by West of the 4-No Trumps. The heart Q was led. East played low and let South win it with the K. Then South, because of West's double, decided to consider West expected to stop the run of clubs. So he finessed the 10 on the second trick, ran the whole suit, took the two diamond tops to make his doubled contract, and was delighted by the lucky drop of the Q and J, which enabled him to get two extra tricks. If West had not doubled, South would have been set beyond peradventure by any method he was at all likely to adopt.

Your Week-End Question
If you were going to teach a rather inexperienced player how to recognize psychic bids and protect himself against damage from them, what would be the first kind of situation you would explain?

USING EX-PRESIDENTS

WHAT TO DO with ex-presidents is a question which has been plaguing Washington for decades. President Truman has made use of Herbert Hoover, giving him a kind of ambassador-at-large rank. But there's nothing official about it. Now Representative Gordon Canfield of New Jersey places a bill before Congress to make all former Presidents senators at large. They would be able to speak from the floor and have all the rights and privileges of the Senate, including salary, clerical help and the like. But they would not vote, since if they did they would upset the balance of the vote of state they happened to represent. The nation thus would have the benefit automatically of the experience of such men, rather than have their services depend on a chance appointment.

A further step along this same line would be to insure that the defeated presidential candidates also be used in some way. The need for this was apparent in the case of Wendell Willkie who had polled a large popular vote, and thus was a suitable channel for the "loyal opposition". He would have had much to offer, and at the crucial war period could have helped to unite the country. This latter idea, however, presumes popularity with the public which, after all, turned him down in favor of the man they elected, and it also presumes a certain strength of character and generosity of spirit not, unfortunately, possessed by every defeated candidate.

CARE OF THE HEART

THREE TIMES as many deaths as cancer, six times as many as accidents, seven times as many as pneumonia and ten times as many as tuberculosis are ascribed vaguely to heart disease. Many of these are due primarily to other causes which in time affect the heart. It is apparently true, however, that the tensions and drive in modern living are more than nature intended the human heart to withstand and there are too many cases of real heart illness besides the failures due to other diseases.

A satisfactory life and one full of service can be worked out for those afflicted with heart impairments. But the heart irregularities must be detected early, and for this there is need of far wider facilities than now available. Here is a line along which national medical attention is trying to proceed, usually without sufficient funds either for preventive research or for hospital care.

By the way, isn't this nation going a little strong on "Beauty Queens"? And getting a little mixed up on them? There were forty fire queens at the recent Twin Cities ice festival.

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to a nippy morning, but one of sunshine and much promise. None of the feel, but some of the appearance of Spring. Very pleasant. Took a turn around the place and then inside for coffee before the start downtown.

At the post a letter from Ed Sensenbrenner and a card from Harley Colwell, both in Florida. Also another Sunday Miami paper from Dave Dunlap, who has put on 15 pounds during his Southern sojourn. A laugh in Ed Sensenbrenner's letter. Said that fishermen have thrown away their rods and reels in Florida for the fish are coming right out on the shore, giving up because of a preference for frying over freezing. Also said that all the natives say the cold spell is very unusual. Copying a favorite California expression, Ed thinks. Al Cook down there freezing with Ed. And Ed was such an optimist that he left behind his ear-flap cap and took along one of the Summer variety.

Chatted with Guy Culp and learned about roads up Lima way and to the north made extremely difficult by ice and snow. Saw Bish Given and Budd Hardin in serious talk and knew that the discussion must be about Spring fishing and when it will get under way. That was it.

Exchanged unpleasanties with George Fitzpatrick. Told me that he was made well by visions of me as one of his pallbearers, and that if I really had been that he would have risen up in the casket to break my arm. Yes, he's practically well.

There goes Frank Wantz soliciting for the Boy Scouts and here comes Ralph May collecting for the Red Cross. Checks to both as they are representatives of worthy causes. Then read of Herbert Hoover's recommendation that we spend a half billion feeding the Germans. Don't know just how much that will cost me, but it will be plenty no doubt. Has to be done, I suppose.

Met Charlie Gilmore who assured me that the steel poles for our boulevard lights will be delivered early in the Spring. And he gave credit for the availability to the group of citizens accompanying him to the production point. Was supposed to go along, but unable to overcome a last minute obstacle.

Anger stirred by a letter from the manufacturer of a piece of machine badly needed in the plant. Asked a $300 deposit with the return of a contract and passed on information that delivery could not be made inside 15 months. So, I wrote back and said xxxxxxxx among other things. This deposit with order coupled with a racket. And one for which I do not fall. Something like the 97 cent ham that does not accompany my eggs.

Home in the late afternoon and then away to the grocery store, a trip from which I returned as broke as from a fishing trip into Canada.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 1—Five or more new sagebrush senators (Republicans) from the Far West have been working together quietly on the highly pressured labor legislation. Their sparsely reported actions suggest they may be leading up to the first formidable intra-party rebellion on the closed shop issue. One of their number, Nevada's George Malone, made a speech out West recently saying he would not vote to outlaw the closed shop. Instead he proposed abolition of the check-off system, whereby the company pays the unions dues and deducts the amount from individual paychecks.

These sagebrushers refer to eastern Republicans as "dudes". They meet in private and are supposed to have sponsored a movement to get their local state unions together on an agreement for labor reform legislation. State locals around the Pacific coast area have shown some inclination to rebel against what they call the New York national leadership of their unions.

particularly the Communist influenced directors. The senators and their local leaders may think they have some unofficial understanding, if not a direct agreement.

The closed shop issue is, therefore, heading up into difficulties.

Basically the closed shop is a monopoly of employment. The unions can see plainly that business monopoly is repugnant to the interests of the public and to the democratic capitalistic system itself. Industrial monopoly has been overwhelmingly opposed for many years because it can charge its own price for its products without fear of competition, but it is uneconomic for many other reasons. It can control production and public supply. It can withhold its products or release them. It can control the raw materials sources of its own supplies, being in varying degrees a large or largest user. It can even control the quality of product, because you are restricted in buying whatever it produces. You cannot walk across the street and buy it competitively. But it is a permanent roadblock to free capitalism because it can prevent a competitor from ever getting started.

The unions cannot see that the same objections hold true concerning a closed shop monopoly of employment. This is not just a question of a man's right to work, although that right should be established. Economically a closed shop can upset a national economy. Without fear of competition, it can fix prices by its wage, hours and other demands increasing the cost of production; indeed forcing them ever upward from year to year in an inflationary spiral. Similarly it can allow the quality of product to deteriorate by its workmanship without fear of interference. It can keep competitive workers from getting jobs and thus restrain trade. From the standpoint of public good, a monopoly of the jobs is as wrong economically as a monopoly of a business.

Now some union authorities tell me the unions could bargain collectively without danger to their rights under a law outlawing the closed shop. Indeed several states started referendum machinery to ban the union monopoly at the last election. The unions generally are well financed and able to care for themselves in equal dealing with management. But the pressures of their leaders has been built up so strong here in congress that certain experienced Republican leaders think they might endanger the coming re-

Treatment of Allergy Aided By Discovery of New Drugs

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE combating of allergies is one of the major problems of modern medicine. The more we study the puzzling fact that substances which are harmless to the vast majority may bring about diseased conditions in the few, the more certain we become that this peculiar, individual over-sensitivity is at the bottom of far more disorders than hay fever, hives and asthma.

Recent investigation of the whole subject has given us at least a clue as to how allergy does its harmful work. There is a chemical in the body which is called histamine and it is thought that the substance to which the allergic patient is sensitive causes excessive amounts of this chemical to be formed and released into the body tissues.

New Drugs

Recently, a number of new drugs which seem to counteract or prevent the action of histamine have been discovered. One of these is called pyribenzamine. A study of its effects on 277 patients reveals that relief of symptoms occurred within 15 to 20 minutes after the drug was taken and that this relief lasted from four to six hours.

Of 140 patients who had hay fever, 85 per cent obtained relief from their symptoms. Of 15 patients with acute hives, all but one were notably relieved. Of 44 with chronic hives, two out of three were greatly improved.

Treatment of Asthma

The results of treatment of asthma were not as satisfactory

as those for hay fever but about half of the patients noted definite relief from their symptoms. When the pyribenzamine was given with another preparation known as ephedrine sulfate more notable improvement in the treatment of asthma was obtained.

Pyribenzamine has also been tried in the treatment of poison ivy and it seems that it is helpful in relieving the itching.

Given by Mouth

Pyribenzamine is given by mouth four times a day, preferably after meals. It is not recommended that the drug be given by injection under the skin or into a muscle nor should it be used by injection into a vein since it seems to cause some lowering of the blood pressure.

Reactions to this preparation are rarely severe. The larger the dose employed the more frequently these reactions occur. They may consist of such things as drowsiness, dizziness, faintness, sickness to the stomach and vomiting. Nevertheless, the preparation can apparently be used over long periods of time without any lasting ill effects. Further studies on this preparation are needed, however, before we can determine just how helpful it will be to the many different types of allergic sufferers.

The drug also gives only temporary relief and does not cure the hypersensitivity. Therefore, it is important to continue searching for the cause, under a doctor's supervision, and eliminate it if possible, or build up a resistance to it.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

BLACK GOING. For the first mile he expected at any moment to hear sounds of pursuit, but there was no sign of the soldiers, and there Cliff gave the trail-wise horses their heads, urging them to a fast trot over the level stretches, stopping only to turn on the flashlight when the animals' hesitation told of a fork in the trail.

"Where are you taking me?" Janet asked him once, as they halted to let the horses rest.

"Big Swamp."

He had been dreading that question, and he knew his answer was evasive, but there wasn't time to talk. Even beyond the need for haste, there was nothing to gain by telling her now. She would know soon enough. And the grim thought came to him that if the soldiers overtook them, there would be no need to tell her at all.

On through the moonless night he forced their flagging horses, while the furtive eyes of jungle creatures watched from beyond the path, and night birds cried in shrill protest at their passing.

Faint dawn was just touching the waters of Big Swamp when Cliff led Janet down the bank and along the line of stunted mangroves toward the mist-shrouded island that for a time at least might have to be her home. And as he rode, it seemed incredibly strange to think of her as a fugitive, seeking a precarious refuge where her father had sought it two years before.

As they came nearer, Cliff's eyes searched each foot of the island, but there was neither sound nor motion, and soon they were climbing up from the swamp and over the flinty trail into the clearing. It lay quiet and empty. Too quiet. For a moment he wondered if the vaqueros or federalists had already found the place and were waiting for him to walk into their trap. In either case there was not time to go back now, and with no attempt at concealment, he rode across the clearing, then stopped in front of the low, thatched dwelling where he had first met Dr. Norman.

Janet's eyes moved curiously about her, then rose to Cliff, and in them he read the inevitable question.

But still he did not speak. He knew he could no longer put off telling her the story of her father's identity, yet he felt a vast unwillingness to begin—so much of that story he himself did not understand. "Janet," he drew a long breath—"I brought you here because—"

She was not listening. Her whole body had stiffened, her eyes, wide with disbelief, were looking beyond him, and turning, Cliff saw Norman in the doorway. Still as a statue Janet sat her horse, while drop by drop the blood drained from her cheeks; her hands tried to rise, then dropped in weakness at her side.

"Father!" Like a cry of anguish the one word broke the silence, and now her head sank forward, she swayed, and would have fallen from the saddle, but Norman caught the limp form in his arms.

Jumping from his horse, Cliff took a step after them, then stopped. Better to leave them together—there was so much for them to say to one another, so much in which he had no place. He watched Norman carry Janet inside the shack, then walked to the edge of the clearing and for a time stood looking out across the waters of Big Swamp, shimmering in the sun. Behind him he heard the low whinny of his horse, and realizing that the two animals were wet and weary after their long climb, led them around to the back of the dwelling, and taking off their saddles, turned them loose to graze on the sparse grass of the clearing. Lighting a cigarette, he sat down in the shade of a palm.

The immediate danger of pursuit was behind him, but he knew that the real peril was still to be met—ahead of him lay the menace of Madison's jealousy, and that could not be avoided for long. The very pattern of Madison's vindictive nature would drive him to some swift act of vengeance, no matter how desperate, no matter, as Janet had said, if he wrecked himself.

What form that vengeance might take, Cliff did not even try to guess, but he could not ignore the fact that any further delay in his work meant only one thing—he would be done. Even now Casey must be wondering about his absence—the men would lose precious time searching for him, and time was the one thing they couldn't afford to lose. A week, a few days even, meant the difference between success and failure.

He was so deeply sunk in his thoughts that he did not hear Janet until she stood by his side.

"You ran away from me," she said.

"You didn't really need me." He saw that her cheeks were wet, but her eyes were shining, and for the first time that day he smiled. "You're happy now, aren't you?"

"I think I'm too afraid to be happy. I keep telling myself that all this really happened—that he's alive and I'm here. But it's too—"

She stopped, and he gently said, "It's all really happened, Janet. Your father's alive."

"But what's ahead for him, Cliff? Will he always have to hide away like a hunted animal?"

"I don't know any more than you, darling. Hasn't he told you why he came here in the first place?"

"We hardly talked at all. I just held him—and cried. I know what they mean now when they talk of crying from happiness."

A footstep sounded on the path, and Norman came toward them. He was as visibly moved as Janet when he shook Cliff's hand.

"I told you once that Janet was not to know about me," he said, "but I was wrong. You were right to bring her here. You were right to bring her here. Cliff answered, 'The soldiers—'"

"Yes, I know about them. I have sent a man back to warn us if they find your trail. There is little chance of that, but a messenger is leaving to tell Vicente to gather our riders. In the meanwhile, there's something you both must know, and perhaps not much time to tell it in."

Seating himself between them, Norman studied Cliff's face, and his gray eyes were smiling. "One of the things I liked about you the first day we met was your bluntness," he began. "You told me I was a cold-blooded father to let Janet go on believing me dead. I want to tell you why I had no choice—I had to do it."

He laid his hand on Janet's and went on. "I suppose everyone thinks his own life work is the most important thing in the world. I know I did. I came here over twenty years ago at Claribel's invitation to stamp out malaria

4 Pass 4NT Dbl

Talk about bad and inconsistent bidding by Mr. North. His opening 3-Clubs call was atrocious enough, when his hand was so useful if his partner ultimately wanted a contract of 3-No Trumps. Then, after South had doubled the 3-Hearts, North became panicky and decided he couldn't deliver any share of the defensive strength. So he fled into the 4-Clubs. A moment's thought would have told him South did not bid him to play. Sent got into the class of blunders when, after North's 4-Clubs takeout, he tried the 4-No Trumps. He should have considered North's second bid as indicating his hand was utterly worthless and void of any high stuff, which is what such bidding would mean if a fine player did it.

But the worst action by anybody was the business double by West of the 4-No Trumps. The heart Q was led. East played low and let South win it with the K. Then South, because of West's double, decided to consider West expected to stop the run of clubs. So he finessed the 10 on the second trick, ran the whole suit, took the two diamond tops to make his doubled contract, and was delighted by the lucky drop of the Q and J, which enabled him to get two extra tricks. If West had not doubled, South would have been set beyond peradventure by any method he was at all likely to adopt.

Your Week-End Question
If you were going to teach a rather inexperienced player how to recognize psychic bids and protect himself against damage from them, what would be the first kind of situation you would explain?

may be assured of a year of greatly desired progress, with promotion, favors and preferment from those in high places, with many opportunities for attaining the goal of heart's desire. Enhanced prestige and popularity in business, professional life as well as in the realm of affectional and domestic fulfillments is forecast. Seek such with high aim and purpose.

A child born on this day is blessed with much versatility, efficiency, for the attainment of its cherished goals and gratifications in life.

March 25

Business and Professional Woman's club members are sponsoring a concert to be held in the Circleville high school auditorium, Tuesday March 25, at 8:15 p. m.

Portsmouth Male Chorus, composed of 50 members will present an evening's program of well selected numbers. Under the direction of Harold M. Welch, with Charles F. Schirrmann as accompanist, the group will demonstrate expert blending and interpretations in their offerings. Mr. Welch is one of the original organizers and has been director since the organization of the chorus. His great music ability, has added much success for the chorus. Mr. Schirrmann, accompanist, and Elza Cook, assistant accompanist, have played with and directed choirs, as well as civic organizations for years.

Portsmouth Male Chorus was ten years old in November, 1946. The group has participated in eisteddfods, having won several top prizes from some of the best choruses in this part of the state.

Portsmouth Male chorus has appeared in radio concerts on coast to coast hook-ups, and is especially noted for their annual Christmas concerts. Tickets for the concert may be purchased from members of B and P Woman's club, or at Hott's music store.

Willis Warner, Portsmouth, is a member of the chorus, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Will H. Warner, East High street, and brother of Mrs. Herbert Snyder, Kingston.

Washington Grange
Makes Plans For Graduation Service

Washington grange met in regular session at Washington township school Friday evening, with Loring Leist, master, presiding. During the meeting the charter was draped in honor of John P. Cunningham, secretary, of Ohio state grange. Mrs. William Goode was reported to be in the hospital. Grange members voted to give a donation to the Red Cross campaign, also answered to an appeal for aid.

Graduation exercises will be given for juvenile grange members, who are joining subordinate granges at the next regular meeting. Following this the degree team, led by Mr. and Mrs. William Richter, will confer the first and second degrees on a group of candidates. An invitation will be extended to a visiting grange to confer the third and fourth degrees. Members answered roll call by presenting and discussing interesting facts and poems, about the many great men whose birthdays come in the month of February. They discussed the importance of different inventors and compared their conclusions with those of the Gallup poll.

Mrs. Minnie Newton read the poem, "Rich in Real Things", and an article "Vitamin C in the Rose" was presented by Miss Nellie Bolender.

"The stand of national grange in relation to present teacher situation" was presented by Mrs. Dorothy Copeland, which was discussed by the group. Mrs. Leona Delong read the poem, "Not Gold but Men" and Miss Weta Mae Leist gave a humorous reading entitled, "All on a' count of Julia". Program was closed with the playing of games and charades.

Beaver Council To

PAPA IS ALL
SCORES AGAIN
AT HIGH SCHOOL

Second performance of "Papa Is All", three-act comedy presented by members of Epsilon Mu Sigma of Circleville high school, was, if possible, even better than the first presentation.

Another appreciative audience was present for the Friday night program in CHS auditorium.

Diction of the characters, made especially difficult by the dialect in which the play was written, was perfect and the lowest speaker was clearly audible in all parts of the auditorium. E. R. Hamlyn, speech and dramatics teacher in the high school, is to be commended for the excellent training he gave the members of E. M. S.

Miss Margaret Rooney, advisor, is to be congratulated for her assistance in producing an outstanding play, along with the play cast, and technical staffs. The enthusiastic reception of Mr. Hamlyn's work predicts even larger crowds at future productions. As on Thursday's presentation, members of the high school girl's sextette offered several vocal selections between acts of "Papa is All". Mrs. Helen Brown, music supervisor, and Miss Beverly Reid accompanied the group.

GROUP PLANS SUPPER
Members of group E, Woman's association of the Presbyterian church, will have a covered-dish supper, Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. in the social rooms of the church. This is the last meeting of group E, for the year.

Those attending the supper are requested to bring a covered-dish, their own table service and a few sandwiches. Mrs. John O. Gussman is chairman of the group.

WOMEN'S CLUBS
NATIONAL MEET
SET FOR JUNE

Announcement of the dates June 23-28 for the annual convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, to be held in the Commodore Hotel in New York City, has been received by Pickaway county club officers.

Attention is called to the fact that the largest women's organization of its kind in the world is meeting in the largest city in the world and at the gateway of the United Nation's center of operations on behalf of which they are carrying on an elaborate educational program.

Attending delegates will represent more than 17,000 individual clubs and affiliated organizations, which include a combined membership of approximately 3,000,000 women who are actively interested in all international and domestic legislation and increased citizenship participation in all communities.

Among the first women speakers to be announced are Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Vera Micheles Dean, research director of the foreign policy association. Topics will concern the United Nations, UNESCO, the peace treaty, many other current domestic problems and the various interests directed by the departments of work: citizenship, American home, education, fine arts, international relations, legislation, post-war planning, public welfare and peace service. Honors will also be bestowed upon Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt.

The Federation is already supporting in this congress the international trade organization including opposition to the post-potential meeting in Geneva; the international refugee organization; for the District of Columbia; the equal rights amendment; the public library demonstration bill and other educational legislation in accordance with policies outlined in resolutions previously adopted.

FOR LENTEN SEASON

Cheese and corn pudding makes a tempting Lenten dish.

BY BETTY NEWTON

Now that the Lenten season is here, many housewives are leafing through the fish, cheese and egg sections of their favorite cook books in search of new recipes for Lenten dishes.

Corn pudding is almost a universal favorite, and when cheese is added it can be very well served as a main dish. With it serve a vegetable salad and some crunchy bread. Rarebit is another easily made cheese dish. Serve it plain on toast or crackers, or over deviled egg halves on toast.

Cheese and Corn Pudding

1/2 lb. American cheese
1/2 C. milk
1 C. soft bread crumbs
2 Tbsp. flour
2 C. whole kernel corn
1 Tbsp. onion, chopped
4 eggs, beaten
Salt
Pepper
1/2 C. buttered crumbs

Melt cheese with milk in top of double boiler or over simmer flame, stirring occasionally. Mix the soft crumbs and flour and add corn, onion, beaten eggs and seasonings. Add cheese mixture and mix well. Pour into greased casserole, top with buttered crumbs and bake at 350 degrees about 40 minutes.

Cheese Strata

12 slices day-old bread
1/2 lb. cheese
4 eggs
2 1/2 C. milk
Salt
Pepper

Arrange 6 slices of bread (crusts trimmed) in the bottom of a baking dish, fitting them in so that the entire surface is covered. Spread the bread with the cheese, or slice it and cover the bread with it. Cover with remaining 6 slices of bread. Beat the eggs, add the milk and seasonings, and pour over the bread and cheese. Let stand an hour. Bake in a very moderate oven, 325 degrees, about 40 minutes, or until puffed up and browned.

To give the illusion of greater size to a small room, paint one or more walls a different color. Or paint one wall and paper the others.

Commercial Point
Garden Club Meets

Commercial Point garden club members held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. R. R. Walker and Mrs. Ben Grace. Twenty members and guests were present.

Miss Ruth Schulz, Capitol Seed company, Columbus, was guest speaker. Her topic was "Annals", which was very interesting and instructive. Miss Schulz high-lighted her discussion with samples of seeds, which portrayed the pictures and instructions for all types of flower and garden seeds. She conducted a "garden - quiz". Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Mrs. William Rush will entertain members of the garden club at their next meeting on March 26.

Auxiliary Group
Meeting Is Held

Ladies' auxiliary of Five Points Methodist church held their February meeting Wednesday evening in the home of Mrs. Charles Hosler, president. Session opened with group singing, "The Old Rugged Cross". Mrs. Earl Liston read from the Psalms, and the Rev. Don Well-er offered a prayer.

Ten dollars was voted to be sent to the Red Cross campaign. Plans were made to serve a sale-dinner, March 5 in Circleville. Jeanette Ann Brigner presented a vocal solo. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Lena Bowshier and Mrs. Nora Bowshier.

Next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Francis Furniss.

Cheese and corn pudding makes a tempting Lenten dish.

BY BETTY NEWTON

Plain Rarebit
2 Tbsp. shortening
1 Tbsp. flour
½ tsp. salt
¾ tsp. pepper
¾ tsp. prepared mustard
1 C. plain cream
1 C. grated cheese
1 egg

Melt shortening in heavy skillet. Mix flour, salt and pepper. Stir into shortening. Add mustard. Add cream, then stir and cook slowly until smooth and thickened. Add cheese and stir until melted. Pour over well beaten egg, stirring constantly. Return to heat for 1 minute. Serve immediately.

Cheese Strata
12 slices day-old bread
½ lb. cheese
4 eggs
2½ C. milk
Salt
Pepper

Arrange 6 slices of bread (crusts trimmed) in the bottom of a baking dish, fitting them in so that the entire surface is covered. Spread the bread with the cheese, or slice it and cover the bread with it. Cover with remaining 6 slices of bread. Beat the eggs, add the milk and seasonings, and pour over the bread and cheese. Let stand an hour. Bake in a very moderate oven, 325 degrees, about 40 minutes, or until puffed up and browned.

Big Sauce Pans
Heavy white enameled sauce pans in BIG 3-quart size. With black enameled handles. 87¢

Stove Top Pads
Waffle style of colorful rubber. Prevent scratching of stove or refrigerator tops. Size 15½x17 in. 84¢

Commercial Point
Garden Club Meets

Commercial Point garden club members held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. R. R. Walker and Mrs. Ben Grace. Twenty members and guests were present.

Miss Ruth Schulz, Capitol Seed company, Columbus, was guest speaker. Her topic was "Annals", which was very interesting and instructive. Miss Schulz high-lighted her discussion with samples of seeds, which portrayed the pictures and instructions for all types of flower and garden seeds. She conducted a "garden - quiz". Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Mrs. William Rush will entertain members of the garden club at their next meeting on March 26.

Auxiliary Group
Meeting Is Held

Ladies' auxiliary of Five Points Methodist church held their February meeting Wednesday evening in the home of Mrs. Charles Hasler, president. Session opened with group singing, "The Old Rugged Cross". Mrs. Earl Liston read from the Psalms, and the Rev. Don Well-er offered a prayer.

Ten dollars was voted to be sent to the Red Cross campaign. Plans were made to serve a sale-dinner, March 5 in Circleville. Jeanette Ann Brigner presented a vocal solo. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Lena Bowshier and Mrs. Nora Bowshier.

Next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Francis Funniss.

CLUB TO MEET

Mrs. Fred Newhouse will entertain members of Past Chief's club Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in her home on East Main street.

IT'S A PLEASURE

Your telephone company is regulated by Federal and State laws, charged with reinvesting a certain amount of the money you spend for telephone service solely for improving and expanding that service.

As yet, not much new equipment is available since the end of hostilities.

Some time in the near future, it will be a pleasure to install new telephone service for those of you who have been so patient in waiting.

CERTIFIED LEGHORN CHICKS
A few cents more invested in good chicks is money wisely invested. With eggs at 4c apiece it only takes 2 or 3 extra eggs next fall to offset the higher cost of 8 to 12c more for a better pullet now. When you buy chicks, you are buying next winter's egg production. Every pullet you buy here is the daughter of an R.O.P. male of 275 to 340 eggs and a daughter or granddaughter of a R.O.P. hen of 250 to 343 eggs. Officially no Pullorum reactors the last two years.

FAVORITES WIN TOURNEY PLAY

Four Unbeaten Teams Keep Records Clean in District Play

By International News Service
Matters were proceeding very much according to plan today as the state's high school cagers whooped into climactic rounds of sectional and district tourney play.

Four undefeated teams successfully survived last night's play along with practically every other outstanding favorite.

In Class A ranks, Upper Arlington had an easy time in recording its 19th straight victory, 64 to 36, over Delaware, Bryan, while adding its 17th win of the year, had to break a tie in the last three minutes to edge a stubborn and surprising Montpelier five, 46 to 44.

CERTIFIED LEHIGH CHICKS
A few cents more invested in good chicks is money wisely invested. With eggs at 4c apiece it only takes 2 or 3 extra eggs next fall to offset the higher cost of 8 to 12c more for a better pullet now. When you buy chicks, you are buying next winter's egg production. Every pullet you buy here is the daughter of a R.O.P. male of 275 to 340 eggs and a daughter of granddaughters of a R.O.P. hen of 250 to 345 eggs. Officially no Pullorum reactors the last two years. BOWERS POULTRY FARM Circleville, O.

SPECIAL—Jamesway electric and oil brooders. All sizes in stock. Also baby chick equipment, laying flock feeders, electric and oil heated waterers and nests. Bowers Poultry Farm, see sign on Rt. 23, 4 miles north.

One-Minute Test

- If you went to a vendue, what kind of event would you be attending?
- What type of person is a "suave" one?
- What is aviculture?

Words of Wisdom

Fullness of knowledge always and necessarily means some understanding of the depths of our ignorance, and that is always conducive to both humility and reverence.—Robert Andrews Millikan.

Today's Horoscope

You have definite artistic tendencies which should be cultivated to your good advantage. You have faith in yourself and your ability and will be successful. You are honest, frank, good-natured, and sincere in your affections. You will win a deep and lasting love. You will receive some benefits today, but the influences are adverse unless costs are carefully considered. Your next year will be moderately propitious, much activity being indicated. Social and domestic matters are pre-eminent, but you are advised to watch expenditures. Avoid impulsive changes, and care is counseled in correspondence. Born today a child will be industrious, ambitious, good-natured, and full of feeling for others, but somewhat erratic, especially in business, and excessively liberal.

Hints on Etiquette

If you are a guest at a dinner or luncheon in a private home, don't push a certain dish away from you with the remark that you "never eat that." It is very rude and embarrassing to a hostess. If you really cannot even taste the dish, leave it alone; say nothing.

Horoscope for Sunday

You should practice sincerity, patience and diligence in your ambitions and everyday life. Be less skeptical. You have great self-control and psychic powers, and are an excellent conversationalist. You have many friends, prefer the company of the opposite sex, but are well liked by your own. The day's aspects are good concerning occupational pursuits, social and heart affairs, travel, clothes, pets, foodstuffs. Gifts or pleasant events are likely. Your fortunes in your next year will be mixed. There will be some good fortune and happiness, also worries and heavy expenses are in the offing. Exercise care and vigilance. The child who is born today will be moderately successful in spite of monetary losses and worries, probably through law or speculation. Employers will render valuable aid.

One-Minute Test Answers

- An auction sale.
- Pleasing, smoothly polite, polished.
- The rearing and care of birds.

for the fun of winning. And some women out in the audience who really could use them are afraid to try. It's funny.

"Someday, I'm going to write a book on human nature."

When week is done and shades of Monday are far away, this column feels like taking off its shoes and relaxing.

In mood relaxation. 11:30 p. m. EST. CBS fills a nightly hour with familiar classical music—a comfortable fill-in between the popular orchestras and the disc jockeys who mostly suffer from overlubricated jawbones.

Sundays, CBS calls it "Music You Know," with the Columbia concert orchestra playing music you know you know if you could only remember the name. It's a nice musical game—the announcer names the selection and composer after the music is played.

Words of Wisdom

Fullness of knowledge always and necessarily means some understanding of the depths of our ignorance, and that is always conducive to both humility and reverence.—Robert Andrews Millikan.

Today's Horoscope

You have definite artistic tendencies which should be cultivated to your good advantage. You have faith in yourself and your ability and will be successful. You are honest, frank, good-natured, and sincere in your affections. You will win a deep and lasting love. You will receive some benefits today, but the influences are adverse unless costs are carefully considered. Your next year will be moderately propitious, much activity being indicated. Social and domestic matters are pre-eminent, but you are advised to watch expenditures. Avoid impulsive changes, and care is counseled in correspondence. Born today a child will be industrious, ambitious, good-natured, and full of feeling for others, but somewhat erratic, especially in business, and excessively liberal.

Hints on Etiquette

If you are a guest at a dinner or luncheon in a private home, don't push a certain dish away from you with the remark that you "never eat that." It is very rude and embarrassing to a hostess. If you really cannot even taste the dish, leave it alone; say nothing.

Horoscope for Sunday

You should practice sincerity, patience and diligence in your ambitions and everyday life. Be less skeptical. You have great self-control and psychic powers, and are an excellent conversationalist. You have many friends, prefer the company of the opposite sex, but are well liked by your own. The day's aspects are good concerning occupational pursuits, social and heart affairs, travel, clothes, pets, foodstuffs. Gifts or pleasant events are likely. Your fortunes in your next year will be mixed. There will be some good fortune and happiness, also worries and heavy expenses are in the offing. Exercise care and vigilance. The child who is born today will be moderately successful in spite of monetary losses and worries, probably through law or speculation. Employers will render valuable aid.

When week is done and shades of Monday are far away, this column feels like taking off its shoes and relaxing.

In mood relaxation... 11:30 p. m. EST., CBS fills a nightly half hour with familiar classical music—a comfortable fill-in between the popular orchestras and the disc jockeys who mostly suffer from overlubricated jawbones.

Sundays, CBS calls it "Music You Know," with the Columbia concert orchestra playing music you know you know if you could only remember the name. It's a nice musical game—the announcer names the selection and composer after the music is played.

BY RUBY JUSTER

New York, March 1—'Twas not my bent but my lot last week to spend a day as housewife to a lot of grime and pretzel crumbs which had from days of neglect bred more of similar nature around the apartment. In this unhappy solitude, I sought solace in the dust-covered radio.

WBNS

Salve for the housewives' mid-morning and mid-afternoon sag, so it would seem, are the give-away shows that bestow upon the studio housewife guest heaps of home-making tools. A casual glance about the ill-fitted apartment was temptation, dust go hang, to dab on a bit of powder and subway to the nearest radio studio.

WBNS

WBNS

Which is, it turns out, precisely what hundreds of housewives in the New York area do daily. Typical of the daily answer-a-question-get-a-present shows is "Give and Take" (10 a. m. EST. Mondays through Fridays, 2 p. m. EST. Saturdays). Thusly it entertains dish-washing housewives over the nation. A contestant is called to the microphone, is told that any two of the fabulous gifts on the stage are hers if she answers two questions correctly.

WBNS

The clean-shaven Santa Claus who chit-chats with the ladies is Bill Cullen.

WBNS

Afternoons, Bill slips into new chit-chat, stacks up new gifts and entertains more housewives for "Winner Take All" (3:30 p. m. EST., Mondays through Fridays). "But," it never fails to impress him, "I look out in the audience and see many of the same faces."

WBNS

On "Winner Take All" two contestants face the mike, and try to out-think one another. The contestant who answers, three questions correctly wins a gift, faces a new contestant, and starts with the questions all over again. There is no limit what she can take home in a fleet of trucks.

WBNS

WBNS

Bill figures he gives $10,000 worth of gifts a week, at a conservative guess, on "Winner Take All," "Give and Take" and a local give-away show, which probably outfits more New York homes than Macy's does. That's more dough in a week than most of us see in five years, but it gets to be like dishing out hot dogs at the local beanery.

WBNS

You'd think of course, that a woman with her arms loaded with toiletries, dresses, watches, lamps, washing machines, ad infinitum, would be swept off her feet.

WBNS

"More are," Bill says. "Their reactions range from over-grateful to obstreperous. You get the constant complainers, too. I remember one woman said to me on the air, 'What will I do with this whole pile of junk. I've got servants at home.'"

WBNS

"A lot of them don't need the gifts, but they try for them just

Veteran Rural Mail Carrier Celebrates 45th Anniversary

WILLIAM WATTS STARTED JOB IN MARCH, 1902

Circleville Carrier Claims
He Has Traveled 360,000
Miles With Mail

William B. Watts, 69, of 534 East Mound street, who will observe the 45th anniversary of his appointment as rural mail carrier out of the Circleville post office.

He said Saturday that during the 31 years and 10 months he delivered mail on rural routes the distance traveled totaled more than 360,000 miles—or more than 14 times around the world.

Watts has been a Circleville resident most of his life. He fought in the Spanish-American War. Following that conflict he obtained the job as rural mail carrier.

It was on March 2, 1902—in the horse and buggy era—that Watts began his duties as one of the first rural route mail carriers working out of the Circleville postoffice. He continued on the job until his retirement in 1933. He will be 70 years old on Aug. 10, 1947.

Watts explained that he worked under six postmasters. They were, in consecutive order, C. C. Chappellear, P. W. Walling, Clint Leist, Oren Gessley, George Foreman, and the present postmaster A. Hulse Hays.

Starting with horse and wagon, Watts said, he later used a motorcycle in summer and horse and wagon in winter, and finally covered the route by automobile.

When rural free delivery of mail was inaugurated out of the Circleville postoffice, Watts said, there were eight routes averaging about 33 miles each. He was first assigned to Route 7 and later was transferred to Route 3. With the change-over of transportation to automobiles the 8 routes were consolidated into 4 routes, and at present these 4 routes are from 60 to 75 miles each.

For more than 10 years Watts covered his route with horse and wagon, then for a couple of years with horse and wagon in winter and motorcycle in summer, and the remainder of his 32-year term of service he drove an automobile.

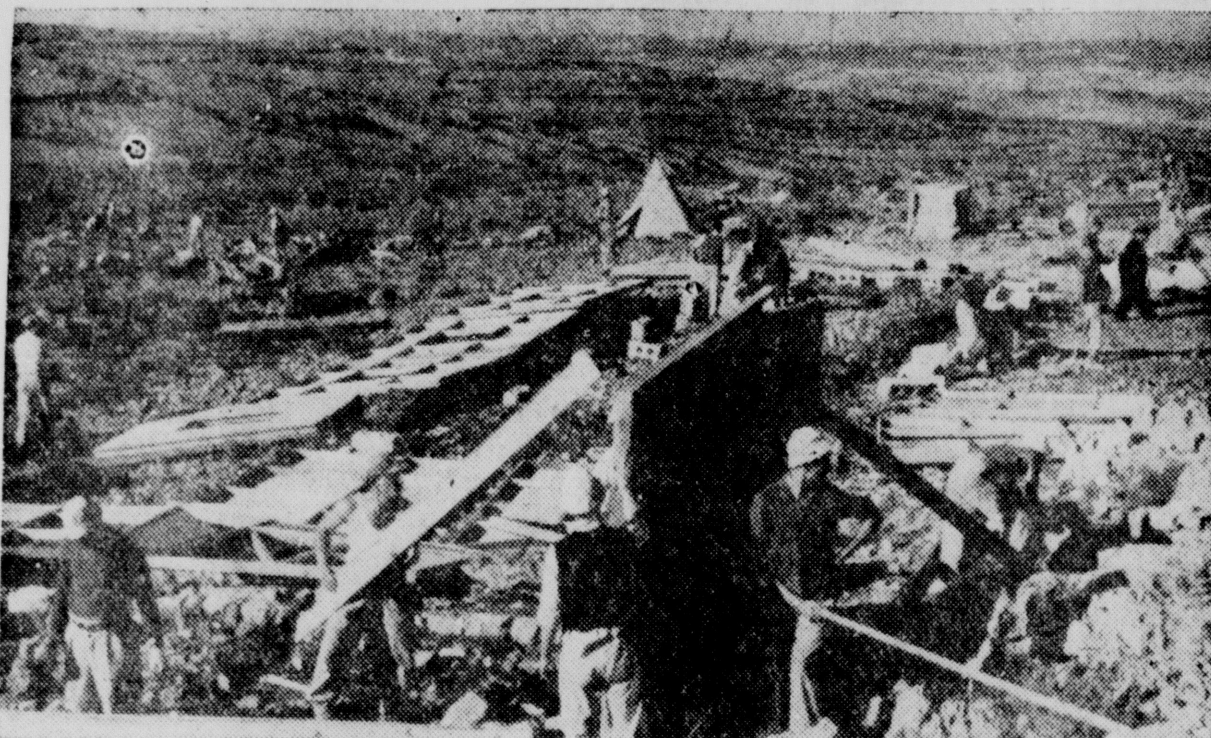

During recent years he was for four successive years supervisor of gates at the Ohio State Fair at Columbus. He also served as gate supervisor during the 1946 Pickaway County Fair.

Watts married Miss Maude Shaw, of Pickaway county, in 1900 in Circleville, and since the wedding they have lived in Circleville. Living with the couple now is a son, John M. Watts.

Mr. and Mrs. Watts are also the parents of three adult daughters. They are: Mrs. Marjorie Maiden, 215 West Mound street; Mrs. Mary Alice Rundels, of Bexley, Columbus; and Mrs. Irma E. Rankin, Los Angeles, Calif.

Asked just how he puts in his time nowadays Watts smiled and replied that he just "rests"—then added that he drives his car almost daily and that he likes fishing and gardening and the radio.

form bill by giving priority to this angle. Consequently, the closed shop issue may wait for a second bill to be passed later in the session.

The project to outlaw industry-wide bargaining is in a little different shape. The AFL national leaders recognize that CIO promoted what is called the vertical union theory, but AFL is stringing along with CIO against any change in the existing union setups, possibly because of John Lewis' influence (he started CIO on the industry-wide basis.) The tactics of the AFL locals, however, have been to deal locally with their employers, and consequently they are not as strongly wedded to the industry-wide bargaining idea. In any event, labor could probably get along without fundamental difficulty on a local basis because its national leaders generally plan the wage drives anyway. What is essential is that the contracts expire at different dates so as to prevent national strikes.

In these two primary matters congress has been trending away from the theory that the government should provide something like compulsory conciliation, by judicial boards, to consider, delay, ease down, or settle major strike threats. Indeed such influential authorities as the National Association of Manufacturers and Brookings Institution (a nonpartisan research foundation) are advocating the new reform line even to the extent of proposing elimination of government intervention.

In the end, however, congress is apt to get back to something very much like the Case bill program establishing government authority—adding a provision against industry-wide negotiations. It could pass overwhelmingly. The Republicans would not need to worry about losing many votes from their slim majorities on that issue. They can get enough Democratic votes to pass that over a presidential veto, and the situation calls urgently for some vastly popular corrections of that nature.

Opinions expressed by the writer in the column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Circleville Herald.

form bill by giving priority to this angle. Consequently, the closed shop issue may wait for a second bill to be passed later in the session.

The project to outlaw industry-wide bargaining is in a little different shape. The AFL national leaders recognize that CIO promoted what is called the vertical union theory, but AFL is stringing along with CIO against any change in the existing union setups, possibly because of John Lewis' influence (he started CIO on the industry-wide basis). The tactics of the AFL locals, however, have been to deal locally with their employers, and consequently they are not as strongly wedded to the industry-wide bargaining idea. In any event, labor could probably get along without fundamental difficulty on a local basis because its national leaders generally plan the wage drives anyway. What is essential is that the contracts expire at different dates so as to prevent national strikes.

In these two primary matters congress has been trending away from the theory that the government should provide something like compulsory conciliation, by judicial boards, to consider, delay, ease down, or settle major strike threats. Indeed such influential authorities as the National Association of Manufacturers and Brookings Institution (a nonpartisan research foundation) are advocating the new reform line even to the extent of proposing elimination of government intervention.

In the end, however, congress is apt to get back to something very much like the Case bill program establishing government authority — adding a provision against industry-wide negotiations. It could pass overwhelmingly. The Republicans would not need to worry about losing many votes from their slim majorities on that issue. They can get enough Democratic votes to pass that over a presidential veto, and the situation calls urgently for some vastly popular corrections of that nature.

ISALY'S

Uptown Grocery & Meat Market

One of the most attractive grocery and meat markets. The store has been newly redecorated and remodeled for self-serving. It has all new modern shelving and heavy inlaid floor covering. The equipment is all practically new and includes 2 large meat cases, walk-in case, meat slicer, frigid-mist vegetable display stand, power meat saw, deep freeze unit, scales, and many other items. All equipment is in excellent condition and the stock is clean and much of it new. Very conservative overhead expenses with low rent. Immediate possession can be arranged.
